Danielle Diorio June 9, 2021

For the last four years, Danielle attended Pinkerton Academy in Derry, New Hampshire. It is a school of roughly 3,300 students. Despite this large student body, she was able to stand out both academically and through leadership positions. She is graduating in the top 75 students of her grade, which contains roughly 800 students. Danielle was also selected to be one of the New Hampshire Scholars, which is a rigorous academic program designed to recognize students who go above and beyond in their courses by taking additional credits.

In her junior year, she was inducted into the National Foreign Language Honor Society. In her senior year, Danielle was inducted into the National Honor Society. She is a member of the Honor Society's Community Service Committee, Communications Committee, and Tutoring Program. In addition to Danielle's academic achievements, she has achieved many other leadership roles in her extracurricular activities.

Danielle was involved in two major activities: Pinkerton Players' Stage Crew and the Pinkerton Academy Band: In Stage Crew, where she was selected to be a Crew Chief and an Assistant Stage Manager, as well as a meeting leader. In band, starting from Concert Band and successfully auditioning into Wind Ensemble, she was selected to be a Section Leader, and in Marching Band, chosen to be a Squad Leader.

In the future, Danielle is pursuing a medical career in anesthesiology. This coming fall, she will be attending the University of Vermont, Where she will be majoring in biochemistry on a pre-medical track, and in four years, she will be graduating with a Bachelor's Degree in Science. After that, Danielle plans on attending medical school and interning at a hospital to get hands-on medical experience. Once schooling is finished, she will begin her residency and work to achieve her goals of becoming an anesthesiologist.
